St. Joseph Healthcare's CarePages: Frequently Asked Questions

What is CarePages?

CarePages is an online community of people coming together to share the challenges, hopes and triumphs of anyone facing a life changing health event. Through personalized websites, members relate their stories, post photos and update friends and family instantly. In turn, people who care send messages of love and encouragement. CarePages also offers a variety of resources and support tools. These include blogs, discussion forums and the ability for users to find others in similar situations. The mission is simple: to ensure that no one goes through a health challenge alone.

What is a personalized CarePages website?

CarePages websites are free, self-created, private "communication centers" to connect people facing health challenges with relatives, friends and other supporters. Each site brings together everyone who cares about a certain individual and makes it easy for them to stay up-to-date, view photos, share messages and comfort each other without repetitive phone calls or e-mails. Each time an update is posted to a CarePages website, an e-mail is automatically sent to everyone who has visited that page and has opted to receive them.

Can I control who visits my Care Page?

Yes. Your CarePage can be as public or private as you decide. You or a family member can open your website to the entire CarePages community, or you can set it up to simply share information, messages and encouragement privately among family, friends and invited guests only. It's totally up to you!

Are CarePages secure?

CarePages are password protected and comply with all patient privacy regulations. All information that is posted and who is allowed to access a CarePage is controlled only by the patient and/or the family and it is completely secure. At no time does St. Joseph Healthcare divulge or provide any patient information for the purposes of this service.

What are the benefits of CarePages?

Life changing health situations, or even a minor illness of short duration can be very isolating. At the most basic level, CarePages alleviate loneliness and isolation by providing a straightforward means of connecting to a community of support – whether friends and family members, people in similar situations, or both.
